CROW CALL

One of the jewels of the Dallas Arts District, The Trammell & Margaret Crow Collection of Asian Art, gets a little retail therapy. Director Amy Holland tapped luxury SoHo top impresario Dean Draper for a redo of the museum's Lotos Shop. Draper, whose clients have ranged from the United Nations to Hermès, has "global" as his middle name. For the Crow, he curates a selection debuting this month called East/West capitals including Milan, Frankfurt and Paris.

Investigate the pop-influenced Mod and Neo-Dots limited to an edition of 10; $74 to $1,295 by French artist Yves Abraham and Thakore fashions from natural fibers; Elodie's eco houses in bamboo and lacquer; Red Flower organic products to stage the seven stages of the Japanese bath; and Murphy-inspired Limoges porcelain, which benefit microfinance projects for women in undeveloped countries. Catherine D. Aragon

SLAVES TO THE RHYTHM

Somebody get Grace Jones on the line. She's going to want to sit this one. The cameras are rolling over at the now-empty Stack Club, the 1980s nightlife phenom in Dallas' West End. The plot? A documentary about the place, complete with the club's founder, general manager, an original bartender and plenty of patrons, now in their 40s and 50s, who have — trust us — wild stories to tell. Then there's the whole Philippe Starck angle: France's bad boy did the interior of the 1984 nightspot, with its surreal central staircase, curved cases and plenty of metal grids to grab onto while gyrating to the beats — which you might've been doing with Prince, Princess Stephanie, Steve Hicks, Rob Lowe and, yes, Grace Jones, who all came to witness the wild life. The kids bring the club's owner, Blake Woodall, together with filmmaker Michael Cane (he, the artistic director of the AFI Dallas Film Festival and the director of the documentary TV Junkie, which won Sundance honors in 2006) and producer, Dennis Bishop, Wade Hampton and Melina McNamee. Target time for the screening? Sundance 2010, next January. Tell your Stack story at stackproject.com. Rob Brinkley

DESIGN BUZZ

Rutherford's blew out 20 candles on its birthday cake this spring. We recently wandered into this home store on West Lower Lane and were inspired by the vintage ribbons and military trim glass, wood and metal beaded trim, and artfully arrayed embroidery, corduroy and trim — perfect for prettifying up a pillow, lamp shade or upholster ... Fly into Nest in Sander Plaza to stock up on the simple plates and leaf-shaped plates by Brooklyn-based design studio KBD — a collection exclusive to Nest. You'll notice they're bone white — but they're actually copper veined in white glass enamel and brushed with 24k gold. And while you're here, check out Jonathan Adler's debut, a perfectly proportioned lacquer console ($3995). Made in Vietnam, each piece is treated with 12 lacquer coats (joined for 48 hours between and water-sanded, foot for a high-gloss finish). Michelle Nussbaumer of Ceylon & Co. has fashioned a new lacquered end table with grant paw feet, available in 26 shades. Such fun! Forty Five Ten carries The Laundry's new laundry soap, which is infused with Du Labo's signature rose scents. Rose 31 ($45 for 16 ounces). Talk about a great excuse to do your laundry ... The Gathering Galleries is now home to New Orleans antiques James Maitrein. Representing the third generation of his clan, Maitrein has brought his inventory (even the original street sign) to Dallas and stocks his shop-in-shop with original 18th- to 20th-century antiques and vintage pieces, as well as reproduction furniture made in-house. His wife, Charlotte, works alongside him, managing The Gathering. Lauren Clodfelter

PURE WATER, IMPURE THOUGHTS

Like that one gale quest who won't leave, the water in traditional whirlpool tubs never vacuums the premises (or, in this case, the pipes), festering all kinds of bad behavior: bacteria, dirt, mold or — we'll stop there. The good people at PuroWATER Baths, a new, Dallas-only boutique, have done away with the typical maze of copper piping where water fingers have freezed their tubs with jets that won't even come clean in your humble dishwasher, leaving you nothing but pure water and pure pleasure. Furthermore, the tube is built by Sanitair Corp., the Dallas-based purveyor of "Pipedream whirlpools" as supplied to fine spas and hotels such as the Mandarin Oriental in New York, the Ritz-Carlton in Orlando, even the The Bachelor in Colorado Springs. No word yet on how PuroWATER's June finale for the Model A Chardonnay
